CURT CLERK SHOT BY AN IRATE WOMAN

IN LAW OF MR. AND MRS.
CHARLES DAGGY IS SERIOUSLY
WOUNDED IN COURT ROOM
SATURDAY WHEN WOMAN
FIRED AT HIM AT CLOSE RANGE

A. Klattee, chief clerk of the court in Milwaukee, a son in law of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Daggy of north of Greencastle, was seriously wounded Saturday afternoon when he was shot twice by a woman.
Klattee had been approached several times by the woman, a boarding house keeper, against whom a court order had been taken to eject her possession of property in which Klattee resided.

BAR CENTER COMING TO UNIVERSITY

ALONZO GOLDSBERRY OF WIN-GATE HIGH SCHOOL FIVE MILES COME TO DE PAUW AND WILL BE SEEN IN ACTION ON TIGER SQUAD — OTHER
STARS ARE LOST

Announcement that Alonzo
Goldsberry, center on the Wingate School basketball team, which recently defeated the star basketball team of the country in tournament play, will come to De Pauw to play with Cannon, Gipson, Moffett, and the Tiger Stars, is causing excitement among the De Pauw
basketball enthusiasts.
The loss of Miller who recently transferred and left school, and with the announcement that Curtis will not play next fall, the two star players were lost to De Pauw. The loss of Goldsberry, no doubt, will be a great loss caused by the loss of two of the best players in the state.
Gibbs, Martinsville star
basketball player will also enter De Pauw next fall.
De Pauw's basketball prowess will continue.

REPUBLICANS SELECT WOOD AND M'CRAY

W. T. McCray of Kentland, is one of the Putnam County candidates for Governor, while Wood is a candidate for Presidential nomination. McCray made a runaway race of the county by securing the bulk of the vote. Wood, backed by the Republican organization, managed to win out by a narrow majority.

INTEREST CENTERS IN BISHOPRIC

GREENCASTLE METHODIST
AND CITIZENS AWAIT ELEC-TION OF BISHOPS BY THE GENERAL CONFERENCE NOW
IN SESSION IN DES MOINES—FEAR THAT DE PAUW WILL LOSE GROSE

The Greencastle and Putnam County
Methodists and citizens are anxiously awaiting the election of Bishops by the General Conference, now
in session in Des Moines.
Several Bishops, seven of eight,
are to be elected and there is much speculation as to just who these men will be. As Dr. George E. Grose
President of De Pauw is prominently spoken of as a candidate for one of the vacancies, it is generally believed here that he will be chosen and that De Pauw will lose its third successive president to the Bishopric route.
Each Bishop Hughes and Bishop
McConnell were elected to the Bishopric while president of De Pauw.

CONDITION OF WOUNDED MAN IS IMPROVED

C. W. DAGGY RETURNS FROM MILWAUKEE WHERE HE WAS CALLED BY THE SHOOTING OF HIS SON-IN-LAW BY A CRAZ-
ED WOMAN

Charles W. Daggy has returned to this city from Milwaukee where he was called Saturday evening by the serious accident to his son-in-law, W.
E. Klattee of the civil court of Milwaukee, who was shot twice by a crazed woman as he was returning to his office from lunch. Mr. Daggy reports that Mr. Klattee is getting along as well as could be expected and that his injuries are not serious. Owing to the fact that the woman used by the woman was of a small calibre the wounds are not serious.
The woman, a boarding house keeper, against whom the court had taken action to get possession of the property which she occupied, had appealed to Mr. Klattee several times to help her in her trouble. Mr. Klattee was unable to help her and had refused her several appeals.
It is presumed that the woman being unable to get help from the authorities became crazed and shot Mr.
Klattee as he was passing through the court room to his office on his way from lunch.
The woman is now being held by the authorities and probably will be committed to an institution.

DEPAUW BOWS TO WABASH IN 8-TO-5 CONTEST

HEALD ALLOWS ONLY FOUR HITS TO TIGER BATTERS —
WINNERS GRAB SIX

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., May 6.—
Good pitching by Heald in the second Wabash-DePauw game on Ingalls field this afternoon, gave Wabash an 8 to 5 victory over the Greencastle aggregation. Heald deserved a shutout, but his support cracked in the eighth and ninth innings, and DePauw was able to score five runs on two hits and three errors.
Heald gave up only four hits, one of the scratch variety, while Julian dealt out six hits and five walks.
Score by innings: R. H. E.
Wabash..... 8 6 3
DePauw..... 5 4 2
Batteries—Heald and Rusie, Julian and M. Guild.

ELECT HARNEY DIRECTOR FOR C. OF COMMERCE

DIRECTORS NAME LOCAL MAN
TO DIRECT PROJECTS WHICH ARE TO BE UNDERTAKEN BY BUSINESS MEN'S ORGANIZA-TION — TRADE DAY AND BUILDING CAMPAIGN

With George S. (Cap) Harney as Director in charge of the affairs of the Greencastle Chamber of Commerce, with a movement to build at least 75 homes in Greencastle in the next year; with a trade day project for Greencastle, merchants within the near future and with a determination to double the population of Greencastle within the next five years, the Greencastle Chamber of Commerce has launched on a tremendous but probably successful campaign.
In securing the services of Mr. Harney, the organization has made a big strike. For Harney is the man who will be able to put things over.
At the meeting Monday night, the Directors of the Chamber of Commerce selected Mr. Harney and outlined a campaign of work. Already Mr. Harney is busy and from this time on you may expect results from the Chamber of Commerce.

A ROTARY CLUB NOW IS PLANNED

MEETING OF GREENCASTLE
BUSINESS MEN TO BE HELD NEXT THURSDAY EVENING IN
THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE
ROOMS — OBJECTS OF THE ORGANIZATION

Greencastle is to have a rotary club
Charles McLaughlin, C. C. Gillen and Harry Z. Freeman, a committee appointed by the Greencastle Chamber of Commerce has sent to Greencastle business men a letter asking them to meet on Thursday evening in the Chamber of Commerce rooms to form a Rotary Club.
A Rotary club consists of ONE man selected from each distinct business or profession; each man being the leading or representative man in the community of his particular business or profession, and as such is honored with the Rotary membership.
The objects of the club are as follows:—
To promote the recognition of the worthiness of all legitimate occupations.

FURNITURE STORE SOLD BY MR HANNA

S. C. PREVO & SONS BUY BUSI-NESS AND WILL ENLARGE THEIR DRY GOODS, MAN'S CLOTHING AND READY TO WEAR STORE — DEPARTMENT STORE IS PLAN — HANNA RE-TAINS UNDERTAKING BUSINESS

S. C. Prevo & sons have bought of Andrew B. Hanna, the latter's furniture store.
Mr. Hanna retains his undertaking business.
S. C. Prevo & Sons will enlarge their present mercantile business and plan one of the largest department stores in this section of the state.
These are the facts, regarding a deal closed Monday.
Plans now under way contemplate
moving of the S. C. Prevo & Sons women's ready to wear department from the second floor of their building to the ground floor now occupied by the men's clothing department.
The men's clothing department will be moved into the ground floor of the Hanna building, while the furniture department will occupy the entire second floor of both buildings.
Entrances between the two store
rooms will be cut in the walls on each the first and second floors, making one business room occupying an entire half block.
Mr. Hanna will retain his undertaking rooms on the second floor and his office on the first floor of the furniture store room. S. C. Prevo & Sons have taken a seven year lease on the Hanna room. The furniture business will be conducted as heretofore by the new owners, who also will retain the Victoria business conducted by Mr.
Hanna.
When the remodeling work is completed, the store will be one of the most modern in this section of the state.

DE PAUW NEWS

A press club composed of all interested in newspaper work, was organized at De Pauw last night. James Claypool was elected president.
The De Pauw Mirage for 1920, the annual year book of the school published by the members of the Junior class, will appear on the campus on May Day, May 22, this year.
Amerex, the organization of A.E.F.
men at De Pauw, will give a minstrel in the Little Theatre in West College Saturday night.

ANDREW HIRT GETS $48'100 FOR 640 ACRES

LOCAL REAL ESTATE MAN MAKES A BIG DEAL IN SOUTHERN LAND — HIGHEST PRICE EVER
PAID FOR MISSISSIPPI TIM-BER LAND — HAD OWNED IT
FOR TEN YEARS

Andrew Hirt of this city closed a deal on Monday by which he sold 640 acres of timberland, near Holly
Bluff, Mississippi, to a syndicate headed by C. D. Beason of Memphis, Tennessee, for $48,100. Mr. Hirt had owned the land for about ten years.
The Putnam Realty Co., was
sales agent in the deal.
The sale of this large tract of land for $75 an acre, is said to be the highest per acre land sale ever recorded in Mississippi.
The land formerly was owned by Alfred Hirt. He disposed of it to his son about ten years ago. At that time the land was not considered as valuable. Continued advances in the price of timber lands, however, placed the land as a valuable possession.

LANCASTER NOMINATED FOR SHERIFF

CLOSE RACE FOR SELECTION OF CANDIDATE MARK TUESDAY'S PRIMARY — EITELJORGE SEC-OND WITH WALLACE A CLOSE
THIRD

Fred Lancaster, present deputy sheriff, was nominated by the Democrats of Putnam County as their candidate for sheriff in the primary election on Tuesday, in one of the closest and most exciting three men races ever recorded in the history of Putnam County politics.
Edward Eiteljorge was second man in the race while Elijah Wallace took third honors. From the very start, the race was a "heart breaker." These three candidates, leaving the five other candidates for the nomination far in the rear, fought to the front and ran neck in neck through the entire county.
Lancaster secured a small margin early in the race, and managed to maintain his advantage during the race. First Eiteljorge and then Wallace.

AUTO STOLEN FROM SQUARE ON SATURDAY

FORD MACHINE OWNED BY C.
W. KNETZER OF FILLMORE
TAKEN FROM THE SOUTH SIDE OF THE COURT HOUSE
LATE IN THE AFTERNOON—
SECOND WITHIN SHORT TIME

A Ford touring car, license number 49,517, owned by C. W. Knetzer of Fillmore, was stolen at near 4:45 O'clock Saturday afternoon from where it had been parked by the owner on the south side of the court house.
The officers have no clue as to the identity of the thief. Only two weeks before a Ford car owned by Ezra Brown, who resides near Cloverdale was stolen from off the square. No trace of this car has ever been found.

DEPAUW TRACK TEAM DEFEATS EARLHAM HERE

The DePauw track team defeated the Earlham thirty clads on McKee field Saturday afternoon by the score of 57 to 65. Harold Jones '20 broke the track record for the 22 yard low hurdle race. His time was 24 and one fifth seconds. The old record was 26 and three fifths seconds. A meet will be with Franklin College on McKee field next Saturday afternoon. The Tiger baseball team will go to Crawfordsville Tuesday to play the second game of the series with Wabash. The first game ended in a tie.

O'BRIEN—DAY

GREENSBURG, Ind., April 30.—
The Rev. Robert Enlow O'Brien of Richmond, Ill., and Mabel Day of this city were married here Wednesday evening. The Rev. A. H. Pitkin of the Methodist church, assisted by the M. A. O'Brien father of the bridegroom performed the ceremony.
Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien are graduates of De Pauw University and members of the Phi Beta Kappa honorary scholarship society. They will live at Richmond where Mr.
O'Brien holds a pastorate. Misses Ethel and Florence Thomson of Indianapolis were among the out of town guests at the wedding.

PROFITEERING LAID TO MAYOR OF LOGANSPOUT

EXECUTIVE JAMES I. BARNES
CHARGED WITH IMPROPER
PURCHASE AND SALE OF CAR LOAD OF SUGAR. CLEANUP OF $7,000 ALLEGED.

Indianapolis, May 3—Charges connecting James I. Barnes, mayor of Logansport, Ind., with an alleged tempt to make excessive profits
in a load of sugar were made yesterday by Stanley Wyckoff, Federal fair
price commissioner of Indiana.
Mr. Wyckoff says his investigation shows that a car load of sugar was sold by Syne—Eagle & Co. of Chicago to the Ruch—Drompp Co. of Logansport, at 19 cents a pound. This car was shipped to Ruch—Drompp & Co.,
and was paid for by J. I. Barnes
mayor of Logansport.
The Ruch Drompp Company is not accustomed to handling large amounts of sugar, according to Mr. Wyckoff.

REPUBLICANS NOMINATE MCCRAY FOR GOVERNOR

Returns at noon today showed that Warren T. McCray of Kentland had been nominated by the Indiana Republicans as their candidate for governor.
James W. Fesler of Indianapolis was the "Runner Up."
McCulloch NOMINATED
Carleton McCulloch of Indianapolis won a sweep victory over his opponents for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

HEN PHEASANTS ARE MASCULINE IN TIME

Tendency Among Females of Tribe to Assume Male Plumage Amazes Science.

NOTABLE CASE OF '76 CITED Investigations of Shifting Sex of Lower Animals Is Being Studied by British.

London.—Hen pheasants occasionally appear dressed in a plumage which resembles that of the cock pheasant to a greater or less degree. It is known that a transformation in sexual characters may take place, not as the bird grows up, but after it has passed through several seasons as a normal hen bird.

A typical instance, a case investigated by Hunter, the founder of the Surgeon's museum, is now on exhibition at the Royal College of Surgeons, Lincoln's Inn Fields. It is the case of a pea hen which had the following remarkable history: She was "the favorite" of the late Lord Tynne and produced chickens right several times. Having moulted when about 11 years old, the lady and family were astounded by her displaying the feathers peculiar to the other sex, and appeared like a cock pheasant. In the third year she did the same, and in addition had spurs resembling those of a cock. She never bred after this change in her plumage and died in the following winter during the hard frost in the year 1775-76.

Biologists have recently realized that such cases provide them with opportunities of discovering the secrets which underlie the differentiation of sexes. Medical men are also interested in such cases, for, although a direct transformation of sex has never been observed in a human being, yet cases of a somewhat similar nature do come under their notice. The exhibition now opened is intended to elucidate such cases.

The investigations begun by John Hunter a century and a half ago are being continued by the officers of the museum. There are at least three kinds of "mule" pheasants—the term "mule" being the one used by sportsmen to denote birds of uncertain sex. The common "mule" pheasant is a hen bird which, like Lady Tynne's pea-hen, begins, in old age, to assume the plumage and character of the cock.

The reproductive glands in such birds are found to have atrophied, lost structure natural to the female, and in some cases taken on an imperfect male character. The changes in the external appearance of the "mule" pheasant are, it is believed, secondary to the alteration in the reproductive glands.

In a very rare class the "mule" pheasant represents a male assuming the female plumage. Such cases have been recorded recently by Prof. Shattock Seligman and by Dr. Hammond Smith.

A "mule" pheasant sent from Sandringham represents a new or third class—one in which the sexual disorder is congenital. In such birds the reproductive system is imperfectly developed from the beginning of life and they are really neuters. The last named class is of special importance to medical men, and the veterinary surgeons, because all the instances which they encounter in their respective practices belong to the "neuter" class.

CHIEF HAS ENCOUNTERS WITH A "GERMAN" PARROT

Engage in Repartee in the Basement of the Waldorf-Astoria and Each Scores.

New York.—In the basement of the Waldorf-Astoria is a parrot, owned by one of the residents, that caused trouble. The bird was innocent, but the owner is German, and he did not know that near to where the bird had quarters were French chefs. One of them was passing the room in which was the parrot when he heard:

"Hoch die Kaiser!"

"What's that?" said the Frenchman.

"Wacht am Rhein," said the bird.

The parrot then began to sing in German, while the chef looked all around the big room for the owner of the voice.

"Prosit," said the bird as the chef caught him by the neck.

"Prosit," said the chef. "Maintenant you old bird, you say, 'A votre sante,' or 'I'll kill you at once.'"

"Votre Sante," sputtered the parrot and the chef went away believing he had converted the parrot.

OFFERED $5,000 TO STAY DRY.

Position Paying $100 a Week Awaits Man if He Will Quit Drinking.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A position at $100 and a bonus of $5,000, to start with an architectural firm, are awaiting William Brownstein, 28 years old. First, though, he will have to serve a month in the House of Correction, and there prove that he can stop drinking.

Frank Von Beyer, an agent of the Society for Organizing Charity, said to Magistrate Renshaw that a firm in this city would employ Brownstein as an architect at $100 a week and give him a bonus if he would stop drinking.

The magistrate sentenced Brownstein to a month in the House of Correction, told him that after he gets out and begins to work he will be watched. If starts drinking again he will be arrested and sentenced to two months.

DANCES ATTRACT ARTISTS

PAINTERS, SCULPTORS AND MUSICIANS, AS WELL AS COLLEGE PROFESSORS, YIELD.

New York.—There is no tribute modern dancing has received so certainly assuring that it has an educational and civilizing influence as the promptness with which it has been adopted not only by persons of wealth and culture but the larger classes who lay no claim to wealth or influence in the pursuit and demonstration of artistic pursuit which is their life work. There are many college professors among the inconspicuous but faithful attendants at many of the public dances in New York and probably elsewhere. Many of them frankly admit that dancing never appealed to them until it broke the barriers of the formal dancing of a few years ago and entered the field of poetry of human movement.

Even more sure in its assurance that modern dancing is but a step in education is the manner in which the classes of all the great art schools of the city have taken to it. The studio without an automatic music producing machine is practically unknown. The public dance place of good repute in the studio neighborhoods which has not a very large attendance from the art schools must have incompetent musicians and strong competition.

This is true not only of the students of drawing, painting and sculpture but of music also. Among the best known exponents of the modern dance is Miss Florence Peterson, who is widely known in the studio world. She is a member of the staff of Mr. Hiran E. Foster and nightly appears at the roof garden dances at the Astor Hotel. Miss Peterson is one of those who have mastered the rhythmical and simple beauties of the opera tango.

BALLS OF FIRE FISH TRAP

Pickering Swallow Roman Candle Explosive and Are Cooked

Onkama, Mich.—Charles M. Stewart of Chicago had an odd experience while fishing in Portage Lake. He was trawling for pickerel in the bay between Portage Point and the peninsula and was having ill luck.

The Y. M. C. A. boys from Evanston and Oak Park are in camp at the north end of the bay and were celebrating by shooting volleys of fireworks across the moonlit waters.

Some of the boys were bouncing the balls of fire from the Roman candles over the water and Stewart was astonished to find the pickerel that had refused to strike at his tempting frogs were leaping at the fiery balls.

Resting his oars he waited until the fireworks ceased, then he gathered five big pickerel from the surface.

They had swallowed the balls of fire and were cooked to a turn. Rowing rapidly to the inn, Stewart served the fish to the guests on the beach.

GIRL SWIMMER CHASED BY SHARK

Miss Helen Nagle, Bathing in the Sound, Sees Monster's Fin and Hurries Ashore.

New York.—Miss Helen Nagle, daughter of Percy Nagle, of 2 East One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street, was the central figure in a tale emanating from Bayside, L. I. According to the story—and there are at least thirty persons down in Bayside who will vouch for its truth—Miss Nagle had an exceedingly narrow escape from a shark.

For several weeks stories have been told of a big shark seen at various points in Long Island Sound. Yesterday Miss Nagle, who was spending the day with her sister, Mrs. J. J. O'Brien of Linwood avenue, Bayside, went in bathing off Garrison's landing. When she was the only person in the water and was about 100 feet out from the float, she heard cries from men and women on the shore and the pier. All were waving their hands, but she paid no attention, thinking they were saluting some passing vessel.

Their cries became more insistent, and soon she made out that they were telling her to come in. She looked about her, and then started to swim with all speed to the float, for about twenty yards out in the water a huge shark fin was sticking up about two feet in the water. The shark was only a few yards away when she reached the float.

Judging from the size of the fin, those who saw it said the shark must have been a monster. Miss Nagle suffered from a severe fright and was taken to the home of her sister.

BOND IS CHOICE RAT FOOD

Rodents Gnaw Through a Trunk and Neatly Destroy Paper.

Cleveland, O.—That Cuyahoga County public building $1,000 bonds are good rat food was evidenced by a long envelope full of the much gnawed remains of one of these bonds brought to a County Commissioner's office by a messenger from the First National Bank.

MAY SKATE TO SCHOOL

Teachers and Pupils Authorized to Make Fast Roller Trips.

Freemont, Neb.—City School Superintendent A. H. Waterhouse has given his approval to the use of roller skates by teachers and pupils on their trips to and from school. Roller skating has become a fad in Freemont. "Teachers who formerly took twenty minutes in walking from their homes to the schoolhouses can skate the same distance in five minutes," said Mr. Waterhouse. "The saving of time is worth while."

WOMAN EXPRESSES FRAUD

Mrs. Elsie Gibson Whitney, School Teacher, Tells of Pribilof Island.

Mount Sunapee, N. H.—Mrs. R. Etta Gibson of Fennell, the mother of Elsie Gibson Whitney, who, with her young husband, has made startling charges against government officials in Alaska, was interviewed here. She has private letters from her daughter containing grave accusations made by the plucky little school teacher.

Motherly Mrs. Gibson fondly relates how Elsie, barely two years ago, married her schoolmate, Edwin C. Whitney.

They spent their honeymoon traveling to the far North post that had been offered them to teach the native children of the Pribilof Islands, way up the Bering Sea, just off the coast of Siberia.

The letters teem with disclosures of drunkenness and lawlessness among the trusted Government employees.

Mrs. Gibson says her daughter's last letter said she and her husband probably would be called to Washington to verify their claims of crookedness among the men in charge of the natives of the Pribilofs.

According to her mother, young Mrs. Whitney has accomplished wonders with the material at hand in teaching the dull Eskimos the three R's in her endeavor to make the Alaska Aleutians into good Americans.

About two mails a year are all that are "picked up" in this far North region, and in one of her letters Mrs. Whitney says:

"I am the only white woman on St. Pauls Island; one of the wireless men has a native wife, so he or she doesn't count in any of our gatherings, and as the doctor, sent here by the Government, is 'boozing' half the time, our mess comprises only five. In fact, the doctor has not been in to meals half a dozen times in the last month."

In another letter written from the same place, she says:

"It has been seven months since we've had any mail; seems like ages. We certainly are limited to necessary material to work with."

"The requisition that we made out a years ago for things actually essential in our school work was crossed off entirely by the chief agent of the Government here, and much more than the amount of money to cover the cost of the articles was put into liquors to sell to the natives."

"A more rotten system and state of affairs than exists on the islands could hardly be conceived. 'Twould take volumes to explain it, so I won't attempt it here."

In a letter last fall she wrote:

"Word came unexpectedly that the supply ship Homer would make but one trip instead of two, as had been the custom, and it was so near time for the boat to leave San Francisco that the only way to get any orders down in time to have things come up for our winter's supply was by wireless at 29 cents a word."

"Then when we sent our message for things most needed, the man who attended to the buying sent about half what was ordered and used the rest of our money to buy 'dainties' for the natives. We were pretty angry, but were absolutely helpless."

Writing from St. George's Island she says:

"I came over here on an act of mercy June 1. Mrs. Hanna's little girl baby was born at 3 a. m., June 5; weighed six and a half pounds. I think I wrote you last summer about her coming up from Texas to marry Mr. Hanna. She had been a society girl down there and I guess this was some change for her, as she was the only white woman on St. George's Island all winter long."

"This island is absolutely out of everything; there are only a few potatoes and onions left and only tea enough to last if it is doled out until the supply ship can get here."

"All sorts of canned goods—our main stay—have been gone since April and flannelettes and such things that would have come in handy for the baby have been out since Christmas."

"This is the fault of the Government agent in charge here, Proctor, who, the natives over on our island (St. Paul), are afraid will be transferred to minister to their wants next year."

2 THUMBS CAUSE HIS ARREST

Messenger Held When He Fails to Return Satin Worth $1,900.

New York.—Two thumbs on his left hand led to the arrest of Jacob Brown, 20 years old, messenger for the silk house of Joseph Zubrow & Co., 235 Fourth avenue. When Brown failed to return with sixteen rolls of satin valued at $1,900, his employers asked the police to find him, saying he had two thumbs on his left hand.

Detective Herman saw a boy carrying a heavy bundle and insisted upon seeing his left hand. When he saw the two thumbs he arrested him, and in the bundle he found the missing sixteen bolts of satin.

His two thumbs also aided the police in identifying Brown as a lad who was in similar trouble a year ago, when he was released on a suspended sentence by the Court of Special Session.

UNCLE SAM IS TO QUIT BUY- ING LIBERTY BONDS

PURCHASE WILL CEASE ON JULY 1 ACCORDING TO ANNOUNCEMENT MADE YESTERDAY

Government purchase of liberty bonds in the open market "except through operation of the sinking fund, will stop July 1, Secretary Houston has announced. "Beneficial effect on the bond market was expected to result," he said. Other officials said the market had begun to right itself, and that bond quotations might be expected to trend upward.

Mr. Houston explained that in continuing the purchase of bonds under the 5 per cent bond purchase fund the government was increasing its float, and that while decreasing its funded debt. He said current requirements of the government were such that, if the bond purchases continued the treasury would have to issue more certificates of indebtedness.

The 5 per cent bond purchasing arrangement was planned by congress to expire one year after the termination of the war, but the secretary was empowered to decide when it had served the purpose of stabilizing the bond market.

Washington, April 28 — Mexican advisers here today, both through American and Rebel channels, continued to note a rapid spread of the revolutionary movement against the Carranza government, particularly in the close vicinity of the City of Mexico itself. Government officials however said they saw nothing in these rather scattering incidents immediately critical in the situation faced by the authorities.

IS KILLED IN ACCIDENT AT CEMENT PLANT

FRANK SCROGGINS, ELECTRICIAN FALLS IN FRONT OF MOVING CRANE CARRIAGE AND IS FATALLY INJURED

Frank Scroggins, age 23, employed as an electrician at the Indiana Portland Cement Plant, was killed in an accident at the plant at near 10 o'clock Thursday morning. Scroggins resided at Putnamville and had been married for only about four weeks. The death is a peculiar one as there seems to have been no real cause for the accident. Scroggins was on the platform of the traveling crane, in the storage house where he was replacing some electric light bulbs.

In some unexplainable manner the young man, while standing on the platform, fell in front of the moving crane carriage. The carriage hit him with great force but did not run over him.

Immediately the carriage struck Scroggins the operator stopped it and the injured man was lifted from the tracks. However he had been struck such a severe blow that death soon followed. The body was brought to Greencastle to the undertaking establishment of Coroner Jacob McCurry. Scroggins knew that the traveling crane was moving as he had motioned the operator to start it. It is believed that he suddenly became dizzy and fell in front of the carriage or that he tripped and fell in front of it.

NEW YORK, April 28 — Indictments charging violation of the Lever act will be sought by the government against leaders in the railroad strike in the New York district, according to announcement tonight by C. B. Ames, assistant United States Attorney general, at the close of an investigation he had been conducting into transportation strikes here.

Federal grand juries in New York and Newark, N. J., will be asked to proceed against the strike leaders, Mr. Ames said. He asserted that Department of Justice agents have fully established the identity of these leaders.

NO PEST HOUSE IN ABANDONED SCHOOL HOUSE

IRE OF CITIZENS IS AROUSED AT MOVE TO USE OLD FOURTH WARD BUILDING AS HOSPITAL FOR A SMALL POX PATIENT. MOVE IS BLOCKED

When Greencastle residents learned late Friday afternoon that Township Trustee Eugene Hamrick had given permission to the city health officers to use the old fourth ward school building on Hanna street as a hospital for a smallpox patient, their ire was aroused and they immediately took steps to block the move. The move was blocked.

The small pox case is now quarantined at the Delta Upsilon House on East Seminary street. A University freshman being ill of a mild attack of the disease. It is believed that a spreading of the disease has been checked. All the Delta Upsilon boys who have been exposed are now in quarantine.

OBITUARY

John Riley King, son of Benjamin and Perminda King was born in Putnam County, Indiana, February 7, 1941 and departed this life March 2, 1920, age 79 years, 1 month and 20 days. He was the oldest of a family of 9 children, four of whom survive him, Serena Plummer of Wheaton, Kansas, Fred Edgar, Nebraska, Sarah Houck and Charlie of Greencastle. His father died when he was a small boy and he was like a parent to his little brothers and sisters. Practically his entire life was spent in this county and he was one of the oldest pioneer farmers of this vicinity.

On Sept. 12, 1865, he was united in marriage to Caroline Cole Anderson and to this union was born 5 children Margaret Bond, Fannie Torr, Gertrude Hutchison, John and Jerome, the latter, who preceded his father to the great beyond only a few months beside these children is a step daughter, Eva Nelson. He leaves to mourn his demise his aged wife, 5 children, 13 grandchildren, and 9 great grandchildren also many nieces and nephews. He had been an invalid for 20 years, but bore his suffering with a patience that was truly marvelous. He was a loving husband kind parent and ever thoughtful of others. We will sorely miss him in the family circle and neighborhood, but our loss is his gain, and he is now where pain and sorrow are no more.

COAL FOR 1920 WILL COST 200 THOUSAND MORE

TRACTION COMPANY IN ITS REQUEST FOR AN INCREASE IN RATES PUTS BLAME ON H. C. OF L.

Indianapolis, April 28 — (The Terre Haute, Indianapolis, and Eastern Traction Company today filed a petition with the Public Service Commission asking for an increase of passenger fares of one quarter of a cent per mile. Pleading the effects of the High Cost of Living as applied to the interurban business, the company asked an increase from two and three fourths cents a mile to three cents a mile as a basis for operation.

The petition sets forth the company's estimate that increased wages alone will add approximately $90,000 to its operating expense for the year of 1920. The company estimates that fuel will cost some $200,000 more in 1920 than it did in 1919. Added to this is the expected increase in freight rates of twenty five per cent, which will cost the company approximately $100,000 more than its freight bill last year. Materials used in maintenance will according to present indication, cost the company about $78,000 more this year than last.

Stricken with an acute attack of appendicitis, Wilbur Sellers was taken to Indianapolis Monday afternoon and Reports from the hospital are that he is getting along as well as could be expected.

How Quinby decided to replace zinc with diamonds and was side-tracked to a compromise.

After gazing fixedly at the placard for several minutes, Quinby entered the store, a feeling akin to despair gripping at his heart and a huge lump rising in his throat—for the placard read:

CLOSING OUT SALE: EVERYTHING GOING AT COST!

Such an announcement could mean only one thing: Colonel Brannon intended leaving Wakinna for the east.

To Quinby the east meant New York—and Wiggins. Confound him! The thought was harrowing.

Not that Quinby really cared whether Colonel Brannon himself remained in Wakinna. It wasn't the colonel. But the colonel's daughter!

Miss Brannon, presiding as cashier in a snug little brass cage near the center of the floor, smiled pleasantly at Quinby's approach.

"Florence," he exclaimed, "what does that sign in the window mean?"

It meant just exactly what he had surmised: Business was dull—very dull. Since the boom had become an event of the past—since the zinc craze had subsided—the prosperity of Wakinna had been on the wane. Families were daily leaving the town, and an oppressive lull was gradually taking the place of the livelier times when the miners, by the hundreds, had sought, in vain, for the mythical riches of the hills.

Accordingly, Colonel Brannon had decided to return to the east. It would probably be a year or more before he could dispose of his stock, if business continued to decrease.

Quinby sighed. Poor, easy-going Quinby, who had never known trouble, who had been content to enjoy what pleasures he might from the bountiful allowance of his father, and who had never lost a minute's sleep grieving over the rapidly diminishing population of Wakinna—he actually sighed. Simultaneously his mind reverted to New York and to Wiggins.

Wiggins, representing a large clothing firm, had visited Wakinna semi-annually, such visits being the source of great discomfort to Quinby, for Quinby was only human, and, being human, he was at times the victim of jealousy. And while a little touch of jealousy twice a year could be endured, the very thought of his sweetheart slipping from him and going to the city where this fellow, Wiggins, resided, was enough to drive him to distraction.

Under ordinary conditions, Quinby could have watched Wakinna dwindle into nothingness without a single pang. But present conditions were not ordinary. Something, anything must be done to hold Colonel Brannon, and incidentally Miss Brannon, in town.

Even with his liberal allowance Quinby disliked to ask Miss Brannon to become his wife until he had, at least, demonstrated to the colonel that he was good for something else besides spending his father's money. Yet, in reality, what else was he capable of doing?

His existence had been remarkably free from toil of any description, physical or mental. Being a sufferer from rheumatism, his excuse for engaging in no manual labor was excellent.

When he left the store his condition was no more cheerful than it had been when he entered. And for the next week he wore a gloomier expression than he had ever worn before.

Plan as he might, he could conceive of no possible means by which Colonel Brannon could be persuaded to remain in Wakinna.

In his restlessness he strolled, or rather limped, about the little village, gazing with disappointment at the deserted mines from which had been taken unsightly heaps of clay and stone—but little if any mineral.

His own property, the Sucker Flat Land, so named by a wag who claimed that more suckers had gone flat broke there than on any other land in the district lay deserted between steep, rocky hills. Since work on the property had ceased, a lake of fine rich, blue mud had formed over a large portion of the area, and this, being fed by numerous steaming hot springs, that had at one time been the source of great annoyance to the miners, was kept in a constant state of vapory moisture.

Quinby one day, eyed his possession disgustedly.

"I couldn't sell it for fifty cents an acre," he grumbled.

A few hours later, by some miracle of chance, Quinby became interested in a magazine article pertaining to diamonds and to diamond mining, and when he learned that the precious stones were often found beneath deposits of blue mud the thought flashed across his mind that the mud on his own land was of a bluish tint.

Although the idea was absurd in the extreme, Quinby reasoned that it was possible that diamonds might be found in America as well as in South Africa or any other country.

At first he tried to expel from his mind such a foolish thought.

"Why, it's ridiculous," he would exclaim, but a short while after he would again find himself thinking seriously on the matter.

"Still, stranger discoveries have been made," he would reason.

WHEN TEA WAS FORBIDDEN.

What Happened at a Party Given by Rebellious Women.

Tea was not brought over by the first settlers. When the pilgrims landed at Plymouth tea was selling in England at from $10 to $50 a pound. It was a luxury that had been known to Englishmen only a few years.

Early settlers got along without India or China tea for a long time. They used roots, herbs and leaves found in the fields and woods as a substitute for tea. Sassafras tea was a common drink.

Tea was advertised for sale in Boston in 1762 for the first time, according to historians. In 1766 patriots began to take the pledge not to drink tea because of the tax that the English Government placed on it. It became fashionable for patriotic ladies not to serve India tea, but as substitutes therefor "Labrador tea" and "Liberty tea."

Capt. Page of Davers forbade his spouse to taste tea beneath his roof as long as the tax remained, but the strong minded and ingenious lady ascended to the flat roof of the house, invited her friends to follow and there she served tea to them.

Some other ladies of the town fared less fortunately. They used to borrow for their tea parties the big teapot of the once famous Bell tavern. One day after drinking the forbidden beverage the master of the house unexpectedly walked in, jumped to the fire, grabbed the teapot and turned it over and out rolled a big frog. The jovial patriots at the Bell tavern, suspecting the use of the pot, had placed the frog in it. Some of the dames never drank tea afterward, for it made them sick.

Isaac Wilson of Peabody persisted in selling tea, so the Sons of Liberty seized him and compelled him to walk about town penitently repeating:

I, Isaac Wilson, a Tory be,
I, Isaac Wilson, I sell tea.

The celebrated Boston tea party was followed by tea parties in other New England towns. In Salem soon after the Boston party David Mason was suspected of having had his negro servant smuggle two chests of tea into the home. Patriots entered and searched the house. They found the tea. They gave it to boys, who paraded with it to Salem Common and there burned it.

Even after the Revolution trade in tea was not wholly unrestricted. It appears that in some New England places dealers in tea were required to take out a license.—Boston Globe.

A Customer Won.

"I have often wondered," said a man who rambles all over town looking for bargains, "how the small merchants in the streets off Broadway and out of the retail districts uptown manage to make their living. I know something about it now.

"A year ago I went into a little store in Greenwich street to buy an article that cost me 12 cents when I finally got it. The first time I made my want known the merchant said that he had never kept the article, although it was in his line. He thanked me for calling his attention to it. He supposed that would not do me any good, but he would get it, for the chances were that some one else would ask for it.

"I did not call again for several days and when I did I went out of my way ten blocks. He knew me as soon as I entered his store. He said he ordered the article and expected it any day. He asked me to leave my address, saying that he would send the article as soon as he received it.

"I went into his place several days after, still going out of my way in doing so. The article was ready.

"What was the result? I have been going out of my way ever since for anything in his line just because the merchant had been so obliging. We became very well acquainted and one day I told him how I had become one of his customers.

"Why," he replied, "that is the way I get my trade. If I didn't try to accommodate people who come in here I would have had to close up long ago."

"I suppose that is the key to the success of all the little merchants in the off streets. It pays to be gracious."—New York Sun.

The English Thank You.

The expression "thank you" is much more current in England than in America. It is also used with much wider significance, often as the equivalent of "I beg your pardon." For instance, says the Travel Magazine, an English person passing before another or perhaps jostling one or even treading on his foot will say in apology "Thank you."

The phrase is heard constantly. If a salesman in a shop or a newsboy on the street solicits your custom and you refuse it he will say "thank you" quite as cheerfully as if you made a purchase.

There is a difference in the utterance too. The English emphasize the second word very strongly and finish with a rising inflection as if asking a question. An American is recognized at once by his accenting the word "thank" and closing with the falling inflection.

A train was recently stopped in Nevada by a meteor, the light from which was mistaken by the engineer for a signal of some sort.

What She Saw

"I declare," said Mrs. Ollips to her husband. "I don't know what Sally Billings sees in Snide McInnis! But she's going to marry him!"

"Well," replied Ollips, "there is no great mystery about that. 'What does she see in him?' and 'What does he see in her?' are two questions that have been asked, I feel safe in saying, since the beginning of time.

"Sally sees in Snide one of those beautiful little things such as we used to pay a nickel for when we were kids—things full of red, white and blue glass that formed all sorts of beautiful shapes and designs. He fascinates her just that way.

"That, doubtless, is all Sally Billings sees in Snide McInnis."

"But he is so homely!" said Mrs. Ollips. "And so stupid."

"Sally Billings is not the fool she looks, my dear. She made the important discovery, no doubt, that the fine and fascinating fellows are not for her. She has taken the goods that the gods provide. This is true philosophy.

"Mac has likewise made the astute deduction that beautiful and accomplished women are not taking particularly to his kind of bait.

"It is all plain to me. A green fly will land a trout on some days and on other days it requires a red fly. Green flies are not the only bait.

"Sally thinks that looks and cleverness are one thing and fuel for the gas meter is another. McInnis shows no Grecian countenance. His nose ought never to have happened, I admit, but it is too late now. However, he has something that is a good substitute for looks. He has laid up some treasures which the gas meter has not yet been able to break through and steal. See the point?"

"And Sally, when she discovered that she was no Lorelei, started in to learn to make biscuits. When she has the inside information and McInnis has the wherewithal, why shouldn't they marry?"

"It is a Samsonian clinch that when two people say 'I will arise as at other times before and get me a husband, or a wife, there will be something doing.'"

"But how can she love him?"

"Love him! Your ignorance of your sex is appalling. A woman is like a turtle. She grabs a man and holds on to him until it thunders. She hangs on to one finger, and she doesn't know there are any other men any more than a trout will recognize a green fly when a red one has taken his fancy."

Our National Song

"The Star Spangled Banner" and the bombardment of Fort McHenry are inseparably associated. The bombardment had commenced. A little vessel guided by Francis Scott Key shot out from beneath Fort McHenry's great guns. He hoped to rescue a friend who had been taken prisoner, but he soon found himself a prisoner. His boat was kept astern of the great Admiral's flagship. He heard the steady cannonading on the shore; he saw the heavy clouds roll over the waters, and he watched the lingering sunbeams of that thirteenth of September fade away. How anxiously he watched the dim twinkling lights from Fort McHenry! How anxiously he watched the preparation for the onslaught; the clearing of the decks; the furling of the canvas, and the ranging of the guns.

The lines of iron soon sent forth their streams of death and destruction. Globes of fire cast lurid gleams upon the inky clouds, while below the waves, like sheets of flame, rose and fell; falling timbers, havoc, din and consternation were everywhere.

Through the long and terrible night Key watched intently the rolling floods of flame. Heaven, earth and sea flashed fire and our country seemed on the verge of ruin. At last the roar ceased; the fire lessened; the din subsided; all was dark and quiet. Oh, was the flag still there? It was an hour of agony. Key waited and watched for the first gray beams of the dawn. The early light crept higher as the mist cleared; with straining eyes he saw still waving from the ramparts the dear Stars and Stripes. Snatching an old letter from his pocket, he laid it upon a piece of wood and with his young hand still trembling with feverish excitement he wrote:

"O say, can you see by the dawn's early light,

What so proudly we hail in the twilight's last gleaming;

Whose broad stripes and bright stars through the perilous fight

O'er ramparts we watched were so gallantly streaming?

And the rocket's red glare, the bombs bursting in air,

Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there,

O say, does the Star Spangled Banner still wave

O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?"

Relics

A Chattanooga man recently met on the highway an aged dandy of his acquaintance with his arm in a sling.

"Is your arm broken?" asked the Chattanooga man, solicitously.

The old fellow grinned. "No, boss; it ain't broken—only sore."

"Ah! been hunting?"

"No, suh; ain't been huntin'. Been shootin' at trees."

"Target practice, eh?"

"No suh; ain't target practice. Jest shootin' at trees."

"I don't understand."

"Well, suh, it's jest like dis. I goes out into de woods an' I selects my trees an' I shoots bullets into 'em. In a little while de trees grow round de bullets. D'n I cut 'em down to sell to persons from de North as relics of de battle of Lookout Mountain."

A Home Thrust

"All sorts and conditions of men have excellent explanations for their positions in life," said the Senator. "A tramp, however, came under my observation who had no illusions about the cause of his own condition."

"A snick-looking and fashionably dressed woman had just alighted from her limousine at the hotel entrance, and was tactfully approached by this shabbily dressed man who requested a dime."

"No, I have no money to spare for you. I don't see why an able-bodied man like you should go about begging."

"I s'pose ma'am, replied the lazy tramp, it's fer about the same reason that a healthy woman like you boards at a hotel instead of keepin' house."

THE BENCH.

I saw a play in the Opera House in a town on the Piebelt Line. They were "trying it on a dog," they said.

This was my seat —

Refined Fish

Bob Davis, editor of Munsey's, was at the Hotel Cecil, in London. Glancing over the menu one morning at breakfast, he said to the waiter:

"What is a whiting?"

"A whiting, sir," said the waiter, "is a fish, sir."

"I know that," said Davis; "but what kind of a fish? How does it taste?"

The waiter pondered the matter for a moment.

"I'll tell you, sir," said he. "A whiting is like a haddock, sir—only more refined."

Not Easily Discouraged

Mrs. Suburbs—"Do you still receive that dreadful Mrs. Comealwas at your home?"

Mrs. Tiptop—"Impossible to get her to take a hint. Do you know, when she called I never offered her a chair."

Mrs. Suburbs—"And what was the result?"

Mrs. Tiptop—"Result? Why, the next time she came she brought a folding campstool with her."

ANN'S RECOVERY

Copyright, The Frank A. Munsey Company.

By Harriet Gaylord.

Joe Parsons slouched over to the back piazza and sat down on the steps, mopping the perspiration from his weak, good-natured face. That last log of wood had been knotty and obstinate, and he had earned a rest from his labors. Through the screen door of the kitchen sounded the twangy voices of the ladies sewing society assembled in noisy session. Suddenly his own name sounded on his ears out of the discord.

"I see ye got Joe Parsons splittin' up yer wood, Mis' Perry."

That was the voice of Sue Ransom, the postmaster's wife.

"Yas, I feel sort o' sorry for Joe."

"Waal, I don't. Joe's a fool, or he'd got inter Ann's game long ago. She's jest plumb lazy, an' that's all 'at's the matter 'th her. She'd git up fast enough ef she wanted ter. That 'clump of a Joe, he jess does her work an' his'n, an' worships the groun' she walks on!"

"Bed she lies on 'd be nearer the truth," interposed a voice he did not recognize.

During the laughter which followed this witticism, Joe slipped off the steps and again tackled his wood pile. Thought was not his long suit, but today he accomplished wonders along the line suggested by the chance words he had overheard. That evening, as he slouched homeward, he chuckled audibly to himself.

"Waal, Ann, darlin', how ye ben ter-day—any better?" he asked, entering the bedroom of the little three-room cottage to which he had brought his bride ten years ago.

"Jes, middlin', Joe—jes' middlin'." Ann was a plump, good-looking blonde, suggesting little of the invalid as she lay propped up in bed with a paper-covered novel lying on the patch-work quilt which served as a counterpane. Joe, who had stopped in the kitchen for an anticipatory scrubbing, stooped over to kiss his wife.

"Ye're jest as pooty as ever, Ann," he said adoringly, as he lifted her long yellow braids and gazed at it with wonder in his eyes. "I worship the ground ye walk on—no, the bed ye lie on 'd be nearer the truth!"

Joe roared with laughter as if the witticism were his own.

"Joe, ye're so rough!" sighed Ann, looking longingly at her novel and the decreasing light outside. "I'm hungry. D'ye think ye'd make cream toast for supper? 'Pears like it 'd taste real good ter-night."

"I guess so, darlin'. Let me see— it's six years, ain't it, sence ye fell on the ice an' hurt yer spine?"

"Seven year come next March," she answered resignedly.

"Ain't ye no better, dearie? Don't the doctor think ye'll be gittin' up soon an' goin' ter fair an' meetin' an' sewin' societies?"

"Some day, I guess." She was impatient now. "But not yet. My back aches me so. Joe, I'm awful hungry!"

"So ye be dearie; so ye be! I'll git supper as quick as ever I kin ef ye'll jest give me one good kiss an' hug fast."

Ann's part in the embrace was passive rather than reciprocal, but Joe seemed satisfied as he trotted off to his culinary labors, leaving his invalid wife absorbed in the love affairs of Lady Wilhelmina Geraldine Montgomery.

Joe's unwonted efforts along the thinking line bore no fruit until midnight was passed. Ann was sleeping soundly by his side. Suddenly she grew dreamily conscious that the bed was no longer a comfortable retreat from the cares and worries of life; and in another minute she was wide awake.

"Masey sake, Joe, what's the matter? Is't an earthquake?"

But Joe made no answer except to roll over and over and groan unceasingly.

"Joe, Joe," she begged, "for the land's sake, tell me what's the matter!"

Joe, who had never had an hour's illness in his life, chuckled and groaned and groaned and chuckled, thrashing about like a whale in the darkness. It was fully seven years since she had called him Joe, and he felt drunk with unaccustomed power.

At last, from the upheaval of her quiet, invalid world, she distinguished these ejaculations:

"Git me somethin' ter stop this pain! I'm goin' ter die! I'm goin' ter die!"

"Oh, don't die! Don't die, Joe!" she wailed. "Darlin', darlin', don't die! Oh, tell me what ter do!"

"Whiskey 'n' hot water!" he groaned. "Whiskey 'n' hot water! Quick! Quick! Oh, my head, my head!"

As he thrashed near the middle of the bed, she was pitched dangerously near the edge—she who had barely put foot on the floor for six years!

"Oh, I can't! I can't walk!" she wailed. "Oh, my back, Joe! My back!"

"Oh, my head! My head! I shall die! I shall die!" he yelled, pushing her further toward the edge.

With a shriek, she leaped to the floor.

"Oh, I dunno where the matches are, Joe! Where are they? Where are they?"

"On the bureau. Oh, I'm dying!" "They won't light!" She broke them off frantically, one by one.

"Oh, my head! I shall die! I shall die! Git me somethin' hot!"

With trembling fingers Ann found a second card of matches, and one broke into sulphurous and smelly flame. When she had lighted the lamp, she saw why the first card had delayed illumination. In her excitement she had broken off, one by one, the teeth of her best pompadour comb.

"Hurry! Oh, my head, hurry!"

With one despairing look at the writing heap of man and bedclothes, she rushed into the kitchen and attacked the stove. When the kettle was on, she scurried about to find a wrapper and her long-unused shoes and stockings. Then she knelt, sobbing, by the bed.

"Oh, Joe, I'm so sorry! What shall I do? Can't ye lie still one minute, dear?"

"No!" he groaned. "I'm dyin', I guess. Git the doctor!"

"I can't! Joe!" she shrieked. "Never in this world! Why, it's half a mile ter the village, and no houses on the way! An' I'm sick!" she whimpered.

But Joe had tasted power, and he hardened his heart.

"Somethin' hot!" he temporized.

When she was in the kitchen, he stretched up in a most ludicrous manner and looked out of the window. Bright moonlight and a powerful summer landing gave him reassurance.

At her return he quitted long enough to gulp down the hot whiskey; then his gymnastics increased. She stood over him, wringing her hands, wild terror in her eyes.

"Oh, Joe, Joe, don't die!" she sobbed. "Don't, don't die! I couldn't live 'thout ye, no way!"

He suddenly stiffened and grew straight and rigid.

"The doctor," he gasped. "Git me the doctor!" Then his eyes closed.

"Joe! Joe!" she screamed. "Joe!" She took hold of his arm and shook him. He was limp beneath her touch. "Joe! Joe! Joe!"

With a last despairing cry, she ran out at the door and into the night.

Eagerly he jumped from the bed and leaped to the window. When he saw his invalid wife running down the road toward the village, he threw back his head and roared with delight and with the joy of a victory won.

The Herald - Democrat

Published Friday at the office, 1 and 1/2 South Jackson Street, Greencastle, Indiana.

Two University boys Study and Isenbarger, members of the Delta Upsilon fraternity, are under quarantine with mild cases of small pox, in the Delta Upsilon house on east Seminory street; fifteen other boys all Delta Upsilon, who have been exposed are also in the house under quarantine and three University girls are quarantined at Rosa Bower of Scarlet Fever.

This is the report of University officials this morning. There is little fear of a spread of the disease as the closest quarantine rules are being observed.

Two weeks ago a Delta Upsilon named Hay, was taken ill and left immediately for his home. Later it was learned that he had small pox. All the Delta Upsilon boys except Study were vaccinated. In some way Study escaped vaccination and later developed the disease. Then Isenbarger whose vaccination did not take was taken ill. It is believed that no further new cases will develop.

BOY BADLY HURT CANNOT EXPLAIN ACCIDENT FACTS

Ernest Roller son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Roller who reside at the corner of Jackson and Columbia street, was badly injured Friday evening in a manner in which he is unable to explain. Young Roller had started to take a walk in the country, leaving home at near 5 O'clock. He says he remembers going out toward the Big Four arch on the Rockville road but cannot explain how he was injured. He arrived home at near 7 O'clock in a dazed condition, and suffering a four inch gash in his left cheek and other bruises and cuts. Whether he was hit by an automobile, was on the track and jumped off the arch to avoid being struck or was struck by a train and knocked off the arch, he has been unable to remember.

ACTIVITY IN CLOSING DAYS OF CAMPAIGN

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES FOR SHERIFF AND COMMISSIONER AND THEIR FRIENDS INDULGE IN MUCH "FENCE BUILDING" THIS THE LAST SATURDAY BEFORE THE PRIMARY

Much activity marked the last Saturday before the Democratic primary which will be held on Monday. Especially in the sheriff's race, in which there are eight candidates, there was much "fence building" by the candidates and their friends today.

The sheriff's race today seemed to be centered on the candidacies of Edward Eiteljorge, Elijah Wallace, Allen Eggers, and Fred Lancaster. Each of these candidates have strong followings and from the court house lobby gossip, it will be a race between these four men.

The third district Commissioners race with David Skelton, Jacob Hendrix, and L. M. Chamberlain the candidates is also creating much interest, and then comes the commissioners race in the second district, R. Buis and Ora A. Day as candidates. These are the only three Democratic races in which there is any contest.

Republicans, also, are busy today, in boosting their choice for the Republican presidential nomination. There are four candidates, Wood, Lowden, Johnson and Harding. Frank Hays county chairman and his lieutenants, are busy attempting to put Wood over in this county but there seems to be lots of opposition both Lowden and Johnson have strong followings.

JESSE W WEIK TELLS OF LIFE OF LINCOLN

Jesse W. Weik of Greencastle the greatest living authority on life of Abraham Lincoln, delivered an address entitled, "Lincoln and Herndon" before the members of the Mississippi Valley Historical Association Friday evening in McHarry Hall. The evening program was the feature of the second day session of the Association which has been holding its thirteenth annual meeting at De Pauw this week. The session closed to night with a social hour at the Ground at Lafayette, with luncheon at Purdue University. The party stopped at Crawfordsville enroute to visit the Lew Wallace Museum.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cross and Mr. and Mrs. Henderson of Brazil motored to Greencastle Sunday and visited Mrs. Cross sister, Miss Ella Beck.

Harry Maxwell has returned from Greensburg where he has been conducting the music at a four weeks revival campaign in the First Methodist church. The Rev Pitkin formerly pastor of the Locust street church in this city is now pastor of the Greensburg First Methodist.

More than 200 friends and relatives of John W. Terry who resides near Mt Meridian surprised him on Sunday which was his birthday anniversary, by going to his home with "well filled baskets" and enjoying the day. The surprise was complete to Mr. Terry.

Saturday was a big day at the county Treasurers office, more than $29,000 being collected through the windows. This does not include the payment of taxes received through the mails.

PRESBYTERIANS FURNISH THEIR OWN ROOFS

The Elat Presbyterian Church in Cameroun West Africa has been re-roofed. The Christians of the community furnished the roofing materials for the work. All natives within ten miles brought in mats made of bamboo leaves for the roof and those from farther brought in a vine called "bush rope", with which the mats are tied on.

A. G. Adams will give an illustrated lecture on the wonderful work being done in this field next Sunday evening, in the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Adams is business manager of the Cameroun, West Africa mission. Mr. J. P. Allen will assist him.

DEPAUW LOSES TWO BASE BALL GAMES FRIDAY

STATE NORMAL SHUTS OUT TIGERS IN GAME PLAYED AT TERRE HAUTE WHILE INDIANA R. O. T. C. TEAM DEFEATS LOCAL SOLDIER LADS 13 TO 0.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., April 30—State Normal shut out De Pauw university at Parson's field today, 4 to 0 for the opening game of the season. Kerr pitched a great game for Normal, allowing but four widely scattered hits, issued no free tickets and struck out thirteen opposing batsmen. Up until the eighth inning, Julian pitched a no hit game for De Pauw but in the eighth three hits and as many free tickets broke up what until that time had been a good game.

Score by inning: R. H. E. Normal ..... 4 3 0 De Pauw ..... 0 4 4 Batteries—Kerr and Winter; Julian and M. Guild.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., April 30—The Indiana University R. O. T. C. baseball team defeated the De Pauw R. O. T. C. nine 13 to 0, in a seven inning game played on Jordan field this afternoon. Indiana scored runs in every inning except the third. The two Indiana pitchers McCarty and Keefe allowed only one hit. The De Pauw twirlers were touched up for nine.

MR. AND MRS. C. C. HUESTIS SOON TO MOVE TO BRAZIL

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Huestis have purchased a residence in Brazil and soon will remove from this city to their new home. Mr. and Mrs. Huestis have resided here for the past five years. Mr. Huestis is now interested in a coal mine at Carbon and Clay Works near Brazil and it is to be nearer his business that he is moving to Brazil.

One hundred and seventy dollars were cleared on the high school girls chorus entertainment given Friday afternoon and evening in the H. S. auditorium. The operetta, "Princess Chrysanthemum" a Japanese entertainment proved successful both in its merit and proceeds.

Mrs. George Christie, head of the music department in the Greencastle Public Schools, is to be congratulated on the splendid manner in which the cast took the parts of the operetta. The Japanese costumes and as a background the new stage setting recently purchased by the school at a cost of near four hundred dollars afforded quite a beautiful sight.

The next big event to be given by the High School Students will be, "It pays to advertise" a clever comedy play in three acts to be given by the Senior Class Friday night in the H. S. Auditorium.

The cast for the operetta, "Princess Chrysanthemum" was as follows: Princess Chrysanthemum... Ruth Wilson.

Empress What for Whirl... Elva Ayler. Sancer Eyes Wizard Cat... Evelyn Ayler. So True... Crystal Cooper.

So Shy... Thoral Donaldson. Top Not... Blanche Bicknell. Attendant Maidens... Capitol Maxwell.

THIRTEEN PER CENT ATTEND HIGH SCHOOL

CLASSIFICATION OF COUNTIES OF INDIANA TO SHOW NUMBER OF PERSONS BETWEEN AGE OF 6 AND 21 WHO ARE PUPILS OF HIGH SCHOOL IS COMPLETED.

Thirteen and eight tenths per cent of the persons between the ages of 6 and 21 years, who live in Putnam County, attended High School during the school year of 1918-1919.

These figures are given out by the State Board of Education which has just completed a classification of the counties in Indiana according to the percentage of persons between those ages who attended high school during the year 1918-19.

The list shows Putnam County in thirteenth place, with a percentage of 13.8. Montgomery county ranks first with a 17.6 per centage, while Brown County is last with a percentage of 4.2.

The school enumeration for the year showed that Putnam county had 5280 persons between the ages of 6 and 21 years and that 729 of them attended high school.

Three "Birds" or "Rabbits", as the State Farm "Runaways" have been christened, are in the county jail awaiting sentence to the state Reformatory. Two of the runaways were brought in Thursday night and one was delivered into the custody of the Sheriff today.

ATTORNEY GENERAL PALMER DISCLOSES REPORTS OF FEDERAL OPERATIONS ON ACTIVITIES OF COMMUNISTS

Washington April 29.—Plots against the lives of more than a score of Federal and state officials have been discovered by the Department of Justice as part of radical May day demonstration Attorney General Palmer announced tonight.

The assassination and assaults, Mr. Palmer said, were included in the May day program organized by the communists Labor party and other radical elements and were in addition to strikes and other disturbances intended by the radicals as an effort in behalf of peace with soviet Russia.

State officials marked as "victims" have been notified by the department the attorney general added of the information in the hands of the Federal government and their cooperation requested in repressing radical demonstrations.

Mrs. Clay Brothers and daughter, Miss Cera who have been spending the winter in Florida, have returned to their home in this city.

NEW YORK'S GREAT KITCHENS.

Getting Bigger Every Year—Ovens Out Under the Street.

In recently built hotels the kitchen is a space about 150x200 feet, floored with red tiles. The walls where exposed are tiled in white. The ceiling is 14 feet high.

At the entrance is the chef's office, and near him the principal refrigerator for the storage of meat. Along one side are from fifty to 100 lineal feet of ranges adapted to coal, gas and charcoal.

In front of these are the cooks' tables, in the steel tops of which are sinks, bainmaria and steam tables. Underneath are steam plate warmers. Above the cooks' heads are racks, on which is hung a picturesque array of copper pots, skillets, saucepans and kettles, and above this again is the elaborate system of ventilating ducts which carry off the smoke and odor from every appliance where heat is generated.

Near the main kitchen and about one-half its size, says indoors and out, is the soup and roasting department, provided with stock, soup and grease boilers and an oven for roasting fowl or large joints of meat. Such an oven in one of the new hotels has a capacity of 1,000 pigeons or 300 chickens or sixteen large ribs of beef.

The boilers are huge copper affairs, double jacketed, and some of the spits for roasting meats are turned by electricity. This department contains its own refrigerator, in which is kept all uncooked food prepared here.

Sandwiches and salads, for example, are prepared near the garde manger. Coffee urns and roll warmers, griddle and waffle ranges, toasters and egg boilers must be where their products can be most conveniently delivered to the room above.

The kitchen should not be removed more than one floor from the dining room, grill room or cafe to be served. Dumbwaiter communication is impracticable, as it cools the food. The human waiter must have free access to the kitchen, and so speedy that he shall spend the greatest possible time in the dining room within call of patrons.

Having dropped his written order in a tube, he must go to the proper place in the kitchen to obtain it when prepared. On his way to the ranges he should pass the counter, near the kitchen entrance, where bread and relishes are supplied, for he must be placing these before his customer while the fish or meat is being cooked.

As he starts up the stairway he must pass the checker, who places the price upon whatever he is serving. For salads he must be able to reach the salad department with equal ease. For wines and liquors he must go to the bar of the kitchen.

Whatever number of stories a hotel displays above the street, the business of the enterprise goes on in those below the pavement, and so hard pressed is the city hotel for space that every foot the laws allow the owner to reach under the sidewalk is eagerly seized.

EXPENSIVE TO INHERIT MONEY.

In Italy Man Had to Pay Government More Than He Got.

In Italy it appears to be a somewhat expensive affair to inherit money, that is, if it be a small sum. Not long ago a young man died in the little town of Romagna, who left one lire fifty-eight centesimi, or not quite 34 cents. This sum, which had been deposited in the Post Office Savings Bank, became the property of the young man's father. As the amount was so small the father thought it unnecessary to make a declaration of the legacy as the law prescribes, especially as the stamped paper on which the declaration must be made would cost about 22 centesimi more than the money involved.

Three months afterward he received a demand from the local State Treasury for the payment of 14 lire 48 centesimi—nearly $3. Thinking a mistake had been made, he took no notice of this demand, with the result that later an official called upon him and demanded the immediate payment of 18 lire—$3.50. The father had not sufficient money in hand, so the official took possession of the man's furniture. The cost of this seizure brought the total sum to 30 lire, which the poor man had to pay that same evening to avoid the sale of his goods by auction.

Cork Thrift.

Because the world's supply of cork is rapidly diminishing, the cork perquisite in the big hotels and restaurants is now a valuable privilege. They are no longer thrown away, but are put in a box or barrel, where they accumulate until the cork picker comes around and pays a round sum in cash for all offered to him. The waiter now employs corkscrews which inflict the minimum amount of damage upon the cork, and in many places where large numbers of corks are extracted in a day a steel cork extractor is used.

Large corks may be recut with considerable profit. Others, which have been injured, can be cut so as to discard the injured portions and utilize that which is sound. Corks which have been discolored by grease can be cleaned by benzine, ammonia or lime and water. Those which have been discolored or flavored by medicine can be rendered usable by long continued boiling with a small quantity of chloride of lime and subsequent drying in a kiln or oven. The finest quality come from champagne bottles, and always command a good price. It is possible to reuse them, and it is said that this is done by manufacturers both here and abroad.

REO

Everyone Wants What Everyone Else Wants

This is the condition which confronts us in the case of the New Reo Six. Because of its outward beauty and inherent mechanical excellencies;—Because, in a word, this new Six is a Reo with all the term implies of stability, dependability and low upkeep. The demand is almost hopelessly in excess of the possibly supply. Our quota is insufficient to supply the local demands—and such is the demand everywhere else, the factory assures us we can not hope for an additional Reo. Among Discriminating buyers—experienced motorists—the new Reo Six is first choice. There are many reasons for this. To enumerate them one would have to mention every detail of this model beginning with that wonderfully simply, wonderfully certain oiling system and ending with the last coat of varnish on the body. For the excellence of this Reo is uniform excellence. Attention to little details is the Reo idea of creating a perfect whole. This latest Reo is also the best Reo—hence the tremendous popularity.

OBITUARY

Elizabeth Neese eldest daughter of John and Mary Neese as born in Tennessee April 3, 1826 and came to Union County Indiana with her parents when but 3 years old, and from there moved to Washington Township, Indiana in 1830 and remained there until her death.

Was united in marriage to Jonathan Wesley Grable May 11, 1848, and to this union were born nine children, four girls and five boys, Thomas Henry, John William, Mary Elizabeth, Sarah Jane, Christopher Ashbell, James Alexander, Lenox Wesley, Malissa and Clarica.

Her husband and seven children preceded her to eternity. She united with the Predestinarian Baptist Church about forty-two years ago, known as Eel River church and lived a consistent member of the church until her death.

She leaves one brother and two sons, John William and Christopher Ashbell, living, and sixteen grandchildren, forty-five great grandchildren and three great great grandchildren and departed this life April 9, 1920; age ninety four years and six days.

A short service, conducted by Elder Lawrence H. Athey, was held at ten o'clock Sunday morning at the home. Burial at the Ferdie cemetery.

A precious one from us has gone

A voice we loved is stilled,

A place is vacant in our home

Which never can be filled.

Named for Two Presidents

When Uncle Rod, the old colored man who worked about the place, came one morning Mrs. Stone said: "Well, Uncle Rod, I hear you have another pair of twins at your house." "Yass, missus," responded the man "we has. Bress day little hearts!" "Have you named them yet?" asked the woman. "Yass'm," said Rod. "Dont name 'em aftah two ob de fust Presidents ob dis country."

"Indeed!" said Mrs. Stone. "Which two?"

"Ole Christofo 'Columbus an' Juleyous Caesar," said the man. "We's great on tamin' de chillun fo' de Presidents 't our house."

Nothing on the President

Appropos of the human side of President Wilson, the President was out for a ride in his automobile one afternoon. The machine passed a small boy standing beside the road.

"Did you notice what that boy did when we passed?" the President asked. "No, Mr. President, I did not."

"He made a face at me."

"Is it possible?" exclaimed the shocked companion. "I didn't observe him."

"He did," said the President; "but did you notice what I did?"

"No, sir."

"Well," answered the President happily, "I made a face right back at him!"

The Poor Compass

Little Jack—"What did papa mean by saying that he was captain of this ship?"

Mother—"Oh, that is only his way of saying that he is the head of this house."

Little Jack—"If papa is captain, then what are you?"

Mother—"I suppose I am the pilot."

Little Jack—"Oh, yes! and then I must be the compass."

Mother—"The compass? Why the compass?"

Little Jack—"Because the captain and pilot are always boxing the compass, you know."

Perhaps

"And what do you propose to do now William?" asked his father of the son who had just come home after graduation at college.

"Oh," yawned the optimistic young man, "I think I'll go over to New York and look for a position at $5,000 per, you understand? At $5,000 per."

"Oh, yes," said the old man. "I understand. You mean at $5,000 perhaps."

USED TO IT.

"Jones, the poet, didn't seem much put out when she refused him!"

"No he wrote his proposal in verse and she rejected it."

Reduction in Price

The president of a western college was spending some time in a large eastern city. In order to study conditions in the city he occasionally took his meals in the poorer restaurants. One morning the waitress brought him some breakfast food that was wormy. He called her attention to the fact. The waitress said that she would go into the kitchen and see what could be done about it. In a few minutes she returned and said: "Since the breakfast food is wormy, you may have it for five cents."

A Bachelor's Guess

Young Mother—"I really don't know why he cries so."

Bachelor Friend—"Perhaps it is his teeth coming through."

Young Mother—"No! he isn't teething."

Bachelor Friend—"Maybe it's his hair coming through that hurts him."

—Puck.

Good Luck

When the agent for the life insurance company paid Mrs. Stone the amount of her husband's policy he asked her to take out one on her own life.

"I believe I will," she said, "as my husband had such good luck."

Brother Jonathan's Wasps' Nest First Citizen—"So you think there is no tanger to be apprehended from foreign powers?"

Second Citizen—"None at all. We have let so many anarchists and dynamite cranks into the country that not even the would care to own us."

Nickel

The word came from the Swedish and is connected with "Old Nick," an evil spirit. The reason it is applied to the metal we know as nickel is that its ore, which is copper-colored, deceived the miners, who expected to obtain copper from it.

TO KEEP AWAY WITCHES.

Women's Belief in the Power of Fantastic Costume.

A remarkable case of supposed witchcraft was brought to light at Taunton, England, recently, says the London Daily Mail, when Frances Jane Smith, a married woman, residing at Sweet Hay, was brought up on a charge of threatening to stab another woman with a pocket knife. The defendant is well known in Taunton, where she has been noticeable for some time past by reason of her fantastic attire.

The police state that the woman and her husband formerly had a large farm near Honiton. Having lost a good deal of stock through disease, some gypsies told the woman that her cattle had been bewitched, and that the only thing which would act as a spell and keep the witches away was for her to dress in peculiar garb and to wear charms in the form of rings and other ornaments. She was also told to put money under a stone to appease the wrath of the witch.

Mrs. Smith presented a remarkable appearance before the magistrate in her grotesque attire. She wore a "Tam-o'-Shanter" with numerous colored feathers, a large check jacket, and an orange colored dress. From her neck were suspended an iron padlock, a pair of scissors, and other articles. Her fingers were covered with rings.

Questioned by the mayor, the woman could give no coherent explanation of her conduct, and the police said they had received complaints of persons being interfered with by the woman.

She caused a scene by going down on her knees and asking to be forgiven.

The charge against her was not gone into, but she was seen by Dr. Willcocks, of Taunton, who certified that she was of unsound mind, and later in the day she was removed to the asylum.

The Value of Expectation.

A popular New England preacher says that if his sermon ever stretches beyond the twenty minutes to which he means always to limit it the words of his little daughter ring in his ears and he reflects that some of his congregation are doubtless feeling as she did on a memorable occasion.

The occasion was the little girl's sixth birthday, which chanced to come on Thanksgiving Day.

She went to church with her mother and sat quietly through the service. The sermon was unusually good, the minister could not help thinking; he had plenty to say, and he said it fluently.

"How did you like my sermon?" he asked his young critic as they walked home together, her small hand in his big one.

"You preached awful long father," said the little girl, "but I beared it because I love you, and I knew I'd have a nice dinner when I got home and forget what I'd been through." —Youth's Companion.

A Cure for Seasickness.

A chat with a hardy Breton fisherman brought forth this novel cure for seasickness. While the old man told of the storms that he had been through, the narrow escapes he had had, and the long journeys he had taken, he was interrupted by the question, "And seasickness? Were you ever sick?" "Never," replied the old man, "and I'll tell you the reason if you like to hear—I never went on any ship without taking a little mirror in my pocket. As soon as I felt the sickness coming on I looked in the glass, and all symptoms passed away. I got the cure from my father, and I never knew it to fail." The receipt is easily tried, and if it does not convince the skeptical there is the consolation that no loss need be entailed in giving it a chance.—P. T. O.

White Lettuce and Green Cabbage.

"There is a curious difference," says a gentleman of St. Louis who spent a large part of the year in England, "between the English and ourselves in the way of growing cabbage and lettuce for the table. With us the cabbage is encouraged to form a head, and when the leaves show a disposition to spread the gardeners sometimes tie a string around the clump to make the leaves grow together. In England, on the other hand, the efforts of the growers are directed toward keeping cabbage green, and they pull the leaves apart so as to expose all portions to the light and give them a dark, rich color.

"We like our lettuce green, but the English want theirs headed up and blanched, so as to have it as white as our cabbage. In other words, they simply reverse our practice, and instead of white cabbage and green lettuce they like green cabbage and white lettuce. Of course it is only a matter of taste, but still the difference is rather curious."

Wives and Daughters Pawned.

They have a curious way of utilizing wives and daughters in some parts of India. If a man wants money he puts these members of his establishment in pawn and his creditor detains them until the debt is discharged. The custom varies in different localities. In Melore the Yernals pledge their daughters to creditors, who may either marry them or give them away, and a man who has to go to jail deposits his wife with another family of her tribe until his return. In North Arcot unmarried daughters are frequently mortgaged and become the absolute property of the holder until Redemption.

By RANDOLPH HAYES

Ten miles from Albuquerque the land rises up, as by acclamation. They call it now Mount Taylor. In those days they called it the Mount of the Swimming Plain. Around the base of it was ordinarily a good day's journey from sun-up to sun-up.

For many generations the races of the southwest were annually run around the base of Mount Taylor. These were determined twice a year; the horse races in the fall, the foot races in the spring.

A man runs better in the spring, for the sap then joints his muscles. As for a horse, he runs well at any time, unless fed too much. Naturally it was the spring that brought the greatest crowds to the base of the Mount of the Swimming Plain, alias Taylor. The Navajos, being nearest, usually arrived first on the ground; then came the Nez Perces, then the Plutes, then the Yaquis, and, finally, the Mokis.

On its own ground, each tribe ran off the elimination contests, so that at the mountain a champion stood forth for each, one man for a tribe. Thus tribes, not single runners, contested in the finals. Tribe glory, not personal esteem, was at stake.

As generation succeeded generation, the glory passed from tribe to tribe, rather impartially. Perhaps the Mokis were, in strict analysis, better runners, as a whole, than any of the others, but they had to travel so far—up from what is now Mexico—that their champion did not win oftener than was good for tribal self-esteem.

Circumscribing Mount Taylor, as I said before, was ordinarily a sun-up to sun-up proposition. In the fall the horses did it usually while daylight lasted. They would start out before the disk of the world's benefactor appeared on the horizon and nearly always crossed the line before twilight had dwindled into dark.

In the spring it was usually midnight before the winner dashed into the presence of the assembled tribes, ragged and gaunt-visaged under torchlight.

There came a decade when the Mokis lost year after year, with depressing regularity. By turns the Navajos, the Nez Perces, and then the Plutes produced champions to distance the best from Mokiland, although Indian connoisseurs were free to admit that, under even conditions, the Mokis were perhaps the best runners in the southwest.

At last, after the tenth successive defeat, the Moki chiefs assembled in solemn council. The situation was desperate. Tribal honor was at stake. Something must be done.

They determined not to migrate down into Mexico that year. They would stay right on the ground, accustom themselves and produce a champion who would show his heels the following spring to all competitors. Legend has it that such is the original cause of the Mokis settling north of what is now the border of Mexico.

The next spring showed the wisdom of this modern method of training for the great event. The Moki champion came in five hours ahead of his nearest competitor, a panting Navajo. More than that—astounding! miraculous!—the last gray shadow of twilight was still on the ground as he hurried himself, sweaty and beady-eyed, across the line. He had run as well as a horse! Never before in the history of the Mount of the Swimming Plain had such a feat been accomplished.

The next year the Moki did the same thing, and a little better. There were lavender and lilac and mauve still in the sky as he came across, winner. The third year gold and crimson stretched the horizon as he captured the prize. The fourth year the disk of the great golden sun itself was still visible as he panted in, victorious.

No horse had ever done so well. The Moki was the acknowledged king of all runners past and present. Legend presented no memory to vie with this glorious actuality. The god-man, the perfect athlete, a Moki predestined for the happy hunting grounds had arrived!

And year by year the prestige of the Navajos fell, for the Mokis had encamped on their territory. The Plutes and the Nez Perces could withdraw to their own countries and console themselves from spring to spring, but not the Navajos. They were compelled to share their ancient lands with the victorious Mokis. They drifted from baffled rage to sullen despair, from despair to meditated revenge, from meditation to determination.

Impromptu Gush of Sympathy

(From Judge)

"Sometimes," reflected the elderly dame, "a man weeps at the wedding of a daughter, because he suddenly realizes what a mean husband he has been to his own wife and is overcome when he thinks of what may be ahead of the girl."

LANCASTER NOMINATED

FOR SHERIFF

lace would threaten to take away his lead but, although they were close to him on many occasions he managed to maintain his lead until the last.

Noticeable in Lancaster's was the fact that he secured a good consistent vote in each precinct in the county, seldom failing to be first or second in the precinct summary.

Great interest was centered in this race and the clerk's office at the court house was crowded until three o'clock this morning by those anxious to hear the final results. At three o'clock, two precincts, west Madison and Fincastle were still to be heard from. At this time Lancaster had a margin of about 40 votes. The returns from the two missing precincts did not arrive until this morning and they made little change in the final. Both Wallace and Eiteljorge ran excellent races, their vote always being good. It was a great three cornered race.

MARTHA J. RIDPATH S.S. CLASS IN ANNUAL DINNER

The Martha J. Ridpath Sunday School class held its thirty fifth annual dinner in the basement of the College Avenue church Tuesday evening. Practically one hundred members of the class were present at the banquet. The class had an enrollment of over 150 DePauw students and boys from the Greencastle High school. The Junior department of the class was organized last fall and has proven very successful.

Frank Roberts, president of the class, presided at the dinner. Toasts were given by Ralph Jones, Stewart LaBrie, Richard McGinnis, William Jones, James Zeis, Rev. Kirkpatrick, and Miss Martha J. Ridpath. Toasts for the toasts were the titles of some of Shakespeares most popular plays.
